

MACKENZIE
Investments

Stay on track to get ahead

Many people react to the market's ups and downs by making emotional decisions about their investments, buying when the stock market is nearing a high, and selling when the market reaches low points. This type of emotional investing may lead to investors sitting on the sidelines and potentially missing out on some of the market's biggest gains.

Keeping money in the market over the long run means investors get the full benefit from all up-market movements. Over the past 15 years, investors who stayed invested even during the worst periods ensured full participation during the best recorded days.

MSCI World Index – March 18, 2005 to March 16, 2020

Source: Mackenzie Investments, Morningstar (For illustrative purposes only).

For more information, contact your financial advisor or visit mackenzieinvestments.com

Commissions, trailing commissions, management fees and expenses all may be associated with mutual fund investments. Please read the prospectus before investing. Mutual funds are not guaranteed, their values change frequently and past performance may not be repeated.

The content of this document (including facts, views, opinions, recommendations, descriptions of or references to, products or securities) is not to be used or construed as investment advice, as an offer to sell or the solicitation of an offer to buy, or an endorsement, recommendation or sponsorship of any entity or security cited. Although we endeavour to ensure its accuracy and completeness, we assume no responsibility for any reliance upon it.